Right, the trust still exist, but my understanding is the date to file a claim against the trust has come and gone.

Marvin, does the fact that the trust still exist mean anything if the date to file a claim has passed?

Hey, Not sure if this means anything or not, but I found it curious.

My understanding was that the liquidating trust was non-existent or terminated. According to Kinder Morgan 104e response the EPEC trust still exists. (Response to question 8).
